Presidential Preference Primary – March 19, 2024

What Is the Presidential Preference Primary Election?

The Presidential Preference Primary (PPP) is part of how we select presidential candidates.

In the PPP, voters registered with Florida's major political parties vote for the presidential nominee they want to represent their party in the November General Election.

After the PPP, political party delegates nominate the preferred presidential candidates at each party's national convention. These national conventions are typically held in July or August. The party decides at the convention which presidential candidate will represent their party on the November General Election ballot.

Who Is on my PPP Ballot?

There is only one contest on the PPP ballot - which presidential nominee you want to represent your party in the November General Election. The choices that appear on the PPP ballot are designated by the Florida Democratic Party and the Republican Party of Florida. Since the Florida Democratic Party nominated Joseph R. Biden, Jr. as their sole presidential nominee, only voters registered with the Republican Party of Florida will have a ballot in the Presidential Preference Primary Election. Voters registered with the Democratic Party, a minor party, or no party will not receive a ballot in this election.

Voter Registration in the PPP

If you were registered to vote in Florida with the Republican Party of Florida by the February 20 voter registration deadline, you are eligible to vote in the PPP. February 20 was also the deadline to change your party affiliation in time for the PPP.

Presidential Preference Primary Election Day – March 19, 2024

Your first chance to vote in 2024!

The Presidential Preference Primary is a special kind of election. Nothing else we have in Florida is quite like it. In fact, the names on the ballot are not even technically candidates, as the “winner” is not elected to office. Instead, the PPP allows voters registered with Florida’s major political parties to direct their state party’s support to a specific nominee at the party’s nominating convention. This also explains why there is no Democratic Party ballot in this PPP, as they only nominated a single name.

This system is rather complicated, but necessary due to the unique nature of the office of President. It is the only elected office that crosses state lines. It’s as simple, and as complicated, as that. This single fact helps to explain why we have presidential primaries, nominating conventions, and of course the Electoral College. We have a long and winding road ahead of us, one that starts with a ballot in your hands, and ends with someone reciting the oath of office to the most powerful position our world has ever seen: President of the United States of America.

Running a presidential election is a great responsibility, and my office treats it with the utmost seriousness. Security is our top priority. You can be sure that your vote is counted fairly and accurately, and that our system is secure from tampering. We go above and beyond by auditing every vote on every ballot to ensure that the results are accurate and free of fraud. Regardless of whether you plan to vote early, at your polling place on Election Day, or by mail, you can trust that your vote will count. And if you do plan on voting by mail, make sure that we have your mail ballot request on file, as a recent change in Florida law resets the requests after each election year.

Every election is a moment in history, and as a registered voter you have the awesome power to participate in this process. And it starts here, in Leon County, with a ballot in your hands.

Your vote is your voice. Please speak up, vote, and be heard!
